

The International Womb Tree Project

Dedication meditation:

The ideal is to do this on a Worldwide Womb Blessing® Day, or on a Full Moon, but you can do it on any day.

Dig a hole for the new tree, or stand around an existing tree.

The Guardian says:

“Mother of our wombs we plant and dedicate this tree as a reflection of the sacred Womb Tree that lies within all women.

As this tree flows with the sacred cycles of the seasons, and of life, may the women of this Land also flow with the beautiful energies of their own sacred cycles.

We ask that:

As this tree grows new shoots may we embrace with joy new beginnings and growth in our lives.

As this tree flowers and opens its branches to shade others, may we also open to love and beauty, and care for others.

As this tree’s leaves and seeds or fruit fall with the seasons or with drought, may we also dance the inward path of change.

As this tree sleeps with the season, may we also return to our womb roots and to our deep inner connection.

We ask that this tree’s spirit watches over the women of this land and through the Earth Mother connects with all the other Womb Trees around the world to watch over, to comfort and protect the women of the world.

We ask that this tree be made sacred to the Divine Feminine, and create a sacred space in its shade for women to connect to Her energies deep within themselves, within the Earth and with the Moon and stars.”

Each woman touches the tree and offers a single blessing for all women. Each blessing could be accompanied by tying a piece of grass to the tree or by pouring little water from a womb bowl onto the root.

(If you use decorations please make sure that they are biodegradable – for example a string of seeds or fruit for the birds, natural fibre rope or strips of cotton fabric.)

The International Womb Tree Project

Each woman who is to be a Guardian for the Womb Tree touches the tree and says:

“I open my heart and my womb to the great womb of the Divine Feminine. May I be her heart and hands to look after this tree and to help women to recognise and cherish the sacredness of the Womb Tree that lies here and within them.”

Fill in the hole if you are planting a tree.

Have a beautiful celebration under or beside your tree.

Smile!

Please post your Womb Tree pictures for everyone to see.
